DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hurt [U.S. Patent No. 1,934,125]. Hurt (figures 1-4) teaches of a towel warmer and dryer cabinet comprising: a hollow cabinet having an open front side and laterally spaced side walls (fig. 1); a towel rod support frame (13's & 14's) having laterally spaced frame members positioned adjacent the lateral side walls of the cabinet (fig. 1); at least one towel support rod (15) extending between and supported by the frame members (via 14's); means (12) on the cabinet for mounting the support frame for movement of the at least one towel support rod through the open side of the cabinet between extended and retracted positions; and a means (combustion of gas for example - gas range) for supplying heated air current movement from within the cabinet forwardly through the open front side of the cabinet (when the door is open).

3. Claims 1 & 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Barnsteiner [U.S. Patent No. 2,225,762]. Barnsteiner (figures 1-11) teaches of a towel warmer and dryer cabinet comprising: a hollow cabinet having an open front side and laterally spaced side walls (fig. 1); a towel rod support frame (outer member of 24) having laterally spaced frame members positioned adjacent the lateral side walls of the cabinet (fig. 1); at least one towel support rod (an inner rod of member 24) extending between and supported by the frame members; and means (14 & 22 for example) on the cabinet for mounting the support frame for movement of the at least one towel support rod through the open side of the cabinet between extended and retracted positions; wherein, the support frame mounting means comprises a pair of towel rod support members (outer legs of 24 - in as much as applicant depicts this embodiment) supporting the at least one towel support rod between them, and track means (22) in the cabinet for slidably supporting the towel rod support member for rectilinear movement between extended and retracted positions.

4. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Buschman [U.S. Patent No. 1,946,386]. Buschman (figures 1-5) teaches of a towel warmer and dryer cabinet comprising: a hollow cabinet having an open front side and laterally spaced side walls (figs. 1 & 3); a towel rod support frame (22) having laterally spaced frame members positioned adjacent the lateral side walls of the cabinet (partially depicted in fig. 3); at least one towel support rod (interior rods of 22) extending between and supported by the frame members; means (figs. 2-5) on the cabinet for mounting the support frame for movement of the at least one towel support rod through the open side of the cabinet between extended and retracted positions; and a means (cooking range for example) for supplying heated air current movement from within the cabinet forwardly through the open front side of the cabinet (when the door is open); wherein, the support frame mounting means comprises pivot means (50 & 52 for example) interengaging the support frame and the cabinet for moving the at least one towel support rod arcuately through the open front side of the cabinet between extended and retracted positions.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Klein and Ou describe drying centers. French publication 2332721 describes a cabinet with sliding rack.
